BUILDING RESILIENCE IN CHILDREN

Join us for a conversation on steps we can take to build resilience in children.

There is a lot of pandemic talk about "resilience". We all know that resilience is about bouncing back, but how much do we really know about what makes people more resilient? Is it genetic? Is it learned? If it is learned, what can we do to instill greater resilience in our children and families? In this mini-workshop we will define what the base elements are that lead to greater resilience and how to apply them to your family so that you can build resilience into your child's daily life.

When: Tuesday, June 1st 7-8pm
