Fords, NJ– We are excited to announce that Prevention Links has received a grant from the Woodbridge Community Development Block Grant Program to support the launch of the Sensory Room at their Greenway Family Success Center located in Fords of Middlesex County. Designed with the help of a wonderful team from Kean University's Occupational Therapy Community Cares Clinic, the Sensory Room is designed to be a safe and supportive exploratory space to meaningfully engage with touch, sight, smell, taste, and sound. In the Sensory Room, parents and children can be introduced to their different sensory systems and engage with different items to calm or stimulate themselves as needed. Rooms such as these can help parents engage with their children in a new way and encourages children to utilize their bodies for self-soothing.

The Sensory Room features a soothing corner with bean bag chairs adjacent to a textured wall that contains a wide variety of tactile and auditory experiences for children to engage with. The space also boasts a welcoming light corner containing lights with different settings to evoke either a stimulating or calming effect. Equipped with weighted blankets, sound machines and more, this room is the ideal setting for a fun and healing sensory experience.

The Greenway Family Success Center was named after the Middlesex Greenway, a three-and-a-half-mile rail trail that connects the municipalities of Metuchen, Edison, and Woodbridge.

Families love to gather at Greenway Family Success Center for free, family-fun activities and educational workshops, with the chance to get to know their neighbors. The GFSC also connects people with local resources that are helpful and meaningful to them, from food pantries to tutoring help.

Prevention Links' Family Success Centers are part of the NJ Family Success Center Network through the Office of Family Support Services at the Department of Children and Family Services.
